reached shore before the commencement of the storm.

In the extreme Northwestern part of Lehman township the storm was the most disastrous. A dwelling was struck and fired by lightning, but the rain, which fell in torrents, extinguished the flames before much damage was done. Barns and sheds were blown down, fences swept away and trees uprooted. Two horses were killed by lightning, and several sheep and cows drowned. The corn and buckwheat crops were completely washed out of the ground in many places. The storm was of longer duration and far more disastrous than the hail tornado of last Thursday.

Heinburg's loss will amount to about 1300; insured for 1800 in the Milwaukee Insurance (ompany. The baker, Schwichteles, estimates his loss at about 1253, with no insurance. Mr. Jonnson, the plumber, will lose about 17,00; no insurance. The house is a total loss.

The occasion was not without its interesting features aside from the burning; the first was the imminent danger of a little two-year old girl of Mr. Heinburg's that was sleeping in the upper part of, the building, and which came near being forgotten curing the excitement.

The next incident that caused some flurry was a runaway of the team attached to the Cumminsville eagine (a Bauccek). In the flurry of preparation the driver, Weidner, started out with but one line in his hands, and were running in an entirely different direction from where they were required.

At the imminent risk of his life Mr. O. E. Rooinson, the painter, sprang forward, caught the horse by the bit, and held on until he was dragged over one hundred yards, but finally stopped the horse.

Toward the end of the occurrence Assistant Lew Winbey had occa ion to choke Mr. Lingo, of the urm of Lingo & Baker, which he did with his usual energy and readiness.
